

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

NON-RATED OFFICERS

DIGITAL EDITION

YOUR SUCCESS

Earning a college degree marks a major achievement in your life. How you use that degree can determine your career success.

When you become an Air Force officer you not only make a real difference in your life but in others' as well. Your leadership and management skills are more than just resume fillers. They're highly valued by Airmen who rely on your guidance, judgment and mentorship.

CAREER FIELDS

Only four percent of Air Force officers are pilots, also known as rated officers. That means many of our officer career fields are non-rated. They are just as important and just as critical to the Air Force mission.

Each job carries its own unique challenges and opportunities offering you important professional growth and experience you can later use in the civilian world.

A few of the non-rated officer career fields include:

Acquisition Management	Multi-Domain Warfare Officer
Aircraft Maintenance	Munitions/Missile Maintenance
Airfield Operations	Logistics Readiness
Contracting	Planning and Programming
Cost Analysis	Public Affairs
Financial Management	Security Forces
Force Support	Special Investigations
Intelligence	Special Warfare

Your recruiter can provide you with a complete list of career field openings and detailed information on specific degree requirements.

REQUIREMENTS

To be considered for an Air Force officer commission, you must first meet these requirements:

- Be a U.S. citizen
- Have a bachelor's degree
- Be 18-39 years of age
- Be commissioned before age 40
- Meet physical requirements
- Be of good moral character
- Score competitively on the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test

As an officer applicant, you'll be evaluated for character, academic accomplishments, community service and leadership potential. Selection is competitive and based on your desires, qualifications, degree and the needs of the Air Force.

OFFICER TRAINING

If you've met all the requirements and are selected, you'll attend Officer Training School (OTS) at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama. OTS is a fast-paced, intensive eight-week program that will challenge you mentally and physically. The goal of OTS is to prepare you to lead with vision, honor and integrity.

When you graduate, you'll be commissioned as a second lieutenant with a service commitment and guaranteed job for four years. Most newly commissioned officers attend a technical school after OTS. The length of schooling depends on your specialty.

BENEFITS

As an Air Force officer, you'll enjoy a quality of life that's hard to beat. Here are some of the many benefits you'll receive:

- An excellent starting salary with regular pay raises
- 30 days of vacation with pay each year
- Tax-free food, clothing and housing allowances
- Comprehensive medical and dental care
- Opportunities for advanced education at little or no cost to you
- Live, work and travel around the world
- Use of base recreational and sports facilities
- Thrift Savings Plan similar to a 401(k)

MULTIPLE WAYS TO SERVE

You can choose one of several paths that allows you to serve your country either full-time or part-time. No matter which path you select, you'll become a member of our global Air Force family. For more information, contact a recruiter today.
